EXCHANGE IS NOT ROBBERY

More Stories of an African Bar Girl

John M. Chernoff

“Fans of Hustling Is Not Stealing will be eager for these further adventures of Hawa, the West African bar girl who told her stories to musicologist Chernoff in 1977 and 1979. . . . The earlier tales were set in Ghana and Togo. Now Hawa has migrated back to her father’s country, Burkina Faso, where she’s working in the nightclubs of Ouagadougou, while periodically visiting her ailing father’s village. She details the complex economic arrangements of bar life—the commission system for hustling drinks, the various rates for sex with bar clients and the informal banking system for safeguarding a girl’s daily take. Indeed, Hawa focuses almost exclusively on bottom-line financials—how to get money out of different sorts of men, the relative benefits of living as a mistress, wife, or girlfriend, and the competition from cheap prostitutes. She even discusses the downside of her hustling life: with no husband, she’s devalued in village life and has no income security. Still, Hawa prefers this to what she sees as the false security of marriage. . . . Hawa remains a strong, provocative teacher.”

WITCHCRAFT, VIOLENCE, AND DEMOCRACY IN SOUTH AFRICA

Adam Ashforth

“Adam Ashforth’s Witchcraft, Violence, and Democracy in South Africa is a work of the highest intellectual quality and beauty. Ashforth brings to life, gives texture and voice to, and writes about witchcraft in generous and humane fashion. Until now, study on witchcraft has been confined to the worlds of anthropology, religion, and history. Ashforth’s bold and ambitious new book firmly inscribes its study in political science. It goes further than any other book in deconstructing ‘witchcraft’ as a concept, as a social and political practice, and as a paradigm.”

We Are Fighting the World

A History of the Marashea Gangs
in South Africa, 1947–1999

Gary Kynoch

Since the late 1940s, a migrant criminal society, known as the Marashea, has operated around South Africa's gold-mining compounds. This book explores how it prospered during the apartheid era and how its involvement in political conflict today is critical to understanding the violent crime epidemic in contemporary South Africa.

“African Voices of the Atlantic Slave Trade will forever alter our understanding of the Middle Passage.”

—Robin D. G. Kelley, author of Freedom Dreams: The Black Radical Imagination

African Voices of the Atlantic Slave Trade
Beyond the Silence and the Shame
Anne C. Bailey

ISBN 0-8070-5512-3
$26.00 hardcover

For centuries, the story of the Atlantic slave trade has been filtered through the eyes and records of white Europeans. In this watershed book, historian Anne C. Bailey focuses on memories of the trade from the African perspective. Capturing scores of oral histories that were handed down through generations of storytellers, she finds that, although Africans were not equal partners with Europeans, even their partial involvement in the slave trade had devastating consequences on their history and identity.

“[A] pathbreaking work. . . . The book powerfully illuminates the importance of the concrete cultural survival of African traditions within the Atlantic slave trade and slavery.”

—MARY FRANCES BERRY, chairperson of the United States Commission on Civil Rights

“A remarkable effort to present the slave trade from a perspective very different from what we are used to—not that of slavery’s liberal opponents or even of the slaves themselves but of the Africans from whose midst the slaves were taken.”

Top Ten Reasons to Become an ASA Member

1. Members attend the Annual Meeting, which has grown into one of the largest annual gatherings of Africanists in the world. The meetings include keynote lectures, panels and roundtable discussions on topics of major importance; publishers' exhibits of the latest books in African studies with representatives available to discuss publishing possibilities; and the presentation of eight awards ranging from book awards to recognition of lifetime achievement. The Annual Meeting also includes showings of latest documentaries and feature films from and about Africa; job placement services; receptions for faculty, students and alumni of African studies programs at major universities; and two very popular events: the welcome reception and the dance party.
2. Members can nominate international scholars to obtain funding to enable them to attend the Annual Meeting.
3. Members receive subscriptions to two leading African studies journals, the African Studies Review, and African Issues, and the professional bulletin, ASA News. Members also receive a discount on History in Africa and the Canadian Journal of African Studies as well as on a wide variety of other ASA Press publications. For a current listing of publication offerings, see http://www.africanstudies.org/asa\_publicationslist.htm
4. Some 37 scholarly, professional and activist organizations currently maintain connections with the ASA and many hold their business meetings at the ASA Annual Meeting.
5. The ASA initiates special projects to support international research collaborations with African scholars in higher education. The ASA promotes networking and mutually advantageous research collaborations. For example, the ASA has supported the development of a website <http://www.isp.msu.edu/AfricanStudies/AEJP/> that provides African scholars access to international journals on Africa. In addition, with funding from the Rockefeller Foundation, the ASA has supported the development of a higher education resource directory; see <http://www.africa.msu.edu/AUP/>
6. The ASA represents the interests of professionals and scholars of Africa and African studies and seeks to broaden opportunities in the field.
7. The ASA seeks to increase public understanding of Africa through the media and other fora.
8. The ASA provides support to those who teach about Africa at all levels, from K-12 to institutions of higher learning.
9. The ASA promotes linkages with African-American scholarly, activist, professional, and local communities that are interested in the study of Africa.
10. The ASA makes funds available annually to assist groups with shipping costs for book donations to African libraries and schools.

The ASA invites all who would like to participate in these activities to join. The ASA welcomes members from North America and around the world. A membership form also may be found on the ASA's at www.africanstudies.org

Within a few weeks of joining the ASA you will receive a welcome packet that includes a brochure that provides information about the ASA's services and governance, and that suggests ways in which you can participate in the ASA activities. You will also in due course begin to receive copies of African Issues, the ASA News, and the African Studies Review.
