	leader	291	Olympic Legacy letters	293	Ralph Erskine's special kind of arrogance; Erskine's white Sweden perspective	299	Materialising the Olympic legacy: design and development narratives Juliet Davis reflects upon both the sustainable regeneration legacy of London 2012 and questions of making the city criticism	302	Futures past William Mann examines the gap between visions and realisation, and forces that have resisted change through an analysis of historical representations of projects for the Lea Valley 315	From green park to theme park? Evolving legacy visions for London's Olympic Park Andrew Smith analyses the subtle changes made to plans for London's Olympic Park, showing how commercial pressures can override sustainable visions as projects evolve
		324	A promised future and the open city: issues of anticipation in Olympic legacy designs Juliet Davis investigates how Olympic legacy masterplans address the promise of long-term sustainable regeneration, through an examination of debates concerning the ethics and the politics of urban design and development
		342	The 'nature' of legacy under localism: fragmentation along the Greenway Andrew Hoolachan provides insights into contested notions of sustainability and the changing politics of localism in the UK by considering the fate of plans to transform a green route above part of London's nineteenth century sewer system environmental design		353	Designing legacy and the legacy of design: London 2012 and the Regeneration Games Graeme Evans contemplates the scale, context and process under which the design and planning of the Olympic regeneration area was progressed and manifested practice	367	Together apart: Hackney Wick, the Olympic site and relational art Isaac Marrero-Guillamón explores the complex relationship between Hackney Wick and the Olympic site through two relational art projects by Jim Woodall and public works practice	377	Lea Valley Drift: paths, objects and the creation of urban narratives Oliver Froome-Lewis considers the potential of drift mapping to stimulate the reappraisal of place, through a live project for the London Legacy Development Corporation, Lea Valley Drift

arq review	391	Hollow Bodies exhibition by sculptor Holly Hendry at Gallery North, Newcastle upon Tyne reviewed by Edward Wainwright insight	396	Amputated Architectures Edward Wainwright interviews Holly Hendry, a London-based sculptor whose work expresses the architecture of hollowness and interrogates architecture for its silent symbolism
