Molecularising Biology and Medicine

New Practices and Alliances, 1930s to 1970s

Soraya de Chadarevain and Hamke Kamminga, both of Cambridge University, UK

An investigation of the rise of a molecular culture in biomedicine, Molecularising Biology and Medicine shows that biomedical practices and strategies centered on molecules were instrumental in the forging of new alliances between the biomedical laboratory, the clinic, industry, and funding organizations from the 1930s onwards. The contributors present a coherent set of case studies of practices, technologies and strategies aimed at the isolation, investigation, manipulation, production, and uses of molecules including vitamins, hormones, blood products, antibiotics, and vaccines.

Science and Spectacle

The Work of Jodrell Bank in Postwar British Culture

Jon Agar, University of Manchester, UK

Science and Spectacle relates the construction of the Jodrell Bank Radio Telescope, built on the Cheshire plains in the late 1950s, to the politics and culture of postwar Britain. From radar and atomic weapons to the Festival of Britain and, later, Harold Wilson's rhetoric of scientific revolution, science formed a cultural resource from which postwar careers and a national identity could be built. The telescope was at once a symbol of British science and a much needed prestigious project for the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research, but it also raised questions regarding the proper role of universities as sites for scientific research.

The indispensable international journal

History and Technology

http://www.gbhap.com/History_Technology/

Edited by John Krige, CRHST, Cité des Sciences et de l'Industrie, 30 Avenue Corentin Cariou,
75930 Paris cedex 19, France

The journal that stimulates research into the history of technology from antiquity to the present, History and Technology seeks to contribute to our understanding of technology as embedded in society, exploring its links with science, on the one hand, and the cultural, economic, political, and institutional contexts on the other. Papers which examine the relations between technology and society in new ways are welcomed.

The Interpretation of Quantum Mechanics and the Measurement Process

Peter Mittelstaedt

This is a monograph on the philosophy of quantum mechanics. In this book quantum mechanics is considered as a universal theory applicable to all physical objects, from atoms and molecules to macroscopic objects, neutron stars and, indeed, the entire universe. Of interest to graduate students and researchers in theoretical physics and the philosophy of science.

Astronomies and Cultures in Early Medieval Europe

Publication
January
1998

Stephen C. McCluskey

An overview of the astronomical practices that continued through the so-called 'Dark Ages'. Early medieval astronomies established a religious framework of sacred time and ritual calendar. Coupled with the remnants of ancient geometrical astronomy, these provided the framework for the rebirth of astronomy.

Symbols, Impossible Numbers, and Geometric Entanglements

British Algebra Through the Commentaries on Newton's Universal Arithmetick

Helena M. Pycior

This is the first history of the development and reception of algebra in early modern England and Scotland. Professor Pycior analyses the struggles of a dozen British thinkers to come to terms with early modern algebra and uncovers these thinkers as a 'test-group' for the symbolic reasoning that would radically change not only mathematics but also logic, philosophy, and language studies.

PERSPECTIVES ON SCIENCE

Historical, Philosophical, Social

"A journal with high standards of scholarship dedicated to addressing issues that cross disciplinary boundaries ... [I] was very impressed by the high quality of research and writing."

— Rose-Mary Sargent
University of Minnesota

Perspectives on Science (ISSN: 1063-6145) seeks to bring forth the studies on the sciences that integrate historical, philosophical, and sociological perspectives. Its interdisciplinary approach aims to develop a more comprehensive understanding of the sciences and the contexts in which they develop. Articles include case studies, theoretical essays, and historiographical works; an essay book review appears in each quarterly issue.

THE BRITISH SOCIETY FOR THE HISTORY OF SCIENCE

Membership of the Society, which normally includes a subscription to The British Journal for the History of Science, is open to all persons approved by the Council of the Society and elected at an ordinary meeting. The annual subscription for the membership year 1998 is £24.00 ($48.00) or £12.00 ($25.00) for associate membership, which includes students at centres of higher education. There is an Introductory Offer for ordinary members who pay £20.00 ($40.00) for the first year. Applications for membership should be made on a form which is available from the Society's Executive Secretary at the address below. Payment may be made by cheque or credit card.

The British Journal for the History of Science is the official organ of the Society. All correspondence on the contents of the Journal should be addressed to the Editor, Dr Janet Browne, The Wellcome Institute for the History of Medicine, 183 Euston Road, London, NW1 2BE, England. Books for review should be sent to the Reviews Editor, Dr Stephen Pumfrey, Department of History, University of Lancaster, Lancaster LA1 4YG.

Advertising: Contact the Journals Advertising Manager, Cambridge University Press, The Edinburgh Building, Shaftesbury Road, Cambridge CB2 2RU.

Other publications: BSHS Monograph Series is designed to allow the publication of monographic studies in the history of science quickly and cheaply. All correspondence on the subject of monographs, and any new suggestions for titles, should be sent to the Series Editor, Dr J. F. M. Clark, Rutherford College, University of Kent, Canterbury, Kent CT2 7NX, England. Monographs are available from Lavis Marketing, 73 Lime Walk, Headington, Oxford OX3 7AD.
