IRCAM

The Second part of IRCAM's contemporary music festival entitled Passage du XX^e siècle will be followed in 1978 by a series of concerts featuring the Ensemble InterContemporain.

Two British works had their French premières during October: Harrison Birtwistle's Meridian at the Théâtre de la Ville on 18 October (Sarah Walker with the Ensemble InterContemporain conducted by Michael Tabachnik) and Peter Maxwell Davies's Worldes Blis at the Théâtre des Champs-Elysées on 26 October (the Paris Orchestra conducted by Pierre Boulez).

Boulez conducted the BBC Symphony Orchestra in the world première of David Lumsdaine's Hagoromo at the Salle Pleyel on 1 December. Hagoromo is the last of five works described by the composer as 'different reflections on the idea of grace as it emerges in the Noh play Hagoromo by Seami (15th century)' The central feature of this play is the dance of an angel. Lumsdaine sees the three large arch-like sections of his own work as 'a single landscape through which the dance passes time and again, always exploring new paths which transforms the elements of the landscape'.

A new work by Michael Finnissy entitled Lost Lands will be given its French première at the Théâtre de la Ville on 19 January. The Ensemble InterContemporain will be conducted by Pierre Boulez. Lost Lands (first performed in Graz—see p.47 for details) is scored for Eb Clarinet, Soprano Saxophone, Violin, Guitar and Piano. The Saxophone is the protagonist and survives emulation by the other instruments to bring the work to a close with a frenetic solo.
