About the cover:

Starting in 2015, the cover format of each volume of Infection Control & Hospital Epidemiology will highlight one of the many professionals throughout history who not only recognized how disease might be spread, but also how epidemiological principles could be applied to reduce healthcare associated infections.

Ignaz Semmelweis (1818-1865) was a Hungarian physician who was appointed an assistant in obstetrics at the Allgemeine Krakenhaus in Vienna. He recognized that women delivered by midwife trainees were significantly less likely to die of puerperal fever than those delivered by physicians or medical students. He hypothesized that puerperal fever could be spread to mothers at the time of delivery by the hands of obstetricians that became contaminated while performing autopsies on women who had died in the maternity ward. Controlled trials of hand washing with chloride of lime solution and disinfection of instruments showed that he could reduce infections among the women cared for by physicians by almost 20-fold. Unfortunately, he did not publish his findings which contributed to the lack of acceptance of antiseptics among senior staff; Semmelweis' academic appointment was not renewed. He left for Budapest, but his beliefs failed to gain traction among colleagues in Hungary. Semmelweis' increasingly erratic and angry behavior led to commitment to an asylum; he died there within a few short weeks at the age of 47 years. Contrary to legend, Semmelweis' autopsy suggests that he did not die of streptococcal gangrene, but rather of trauma related to beatings inflicted by the guards at the asylum and an early Alzheimer-type dementia.

Physician – Infectious Disease/Hospital Epidemiology

Dartmouth-Hitchcock in Lebanon, NH and The Geisel School of Medicine at Dartmouth are seeking a Hospital Epidemiologist in the Section of Infectious Disease and International Health (IDIH). Dartmouth-Hitchcock is an organization committed to Population Health and Patient Safety. This is an opportunity for the right candidate to develop innovative programs both within the Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical Center and regionally. This individual will dedicate 20% of his/her time to clinical care within the IDIH Section, at least 5% to teaching within the medical school, and the remainder to leadership, research, and practice of Hospital Epidemiology and Infection Prevention at Dartmouth-Hitchcock. The successful candidate will be board certified in Infectious Disease with active clinical and hospital epidemiology responsibilities, have an outstanding record of scholarly achievement and original research, and possess excellent interpersonal and mentoring skills as well as administrative ability and experience.

IDIH is a strong and stable clinical Section within the Department of Medicine. The core membership of the Collaborative Healthcare-associated Infection Prevention Program at Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical Center currently includes two physicians, three infection preventionists, an operational leader, and a data manager. Candidates must be eligible to be licensed by the State of New Hampshire and qualify for a faculty appointment in the Department of Medicine at the Geisel School of Medicine at Dartmouth. Rank at the Geisel School of Medicine at Dartmouth will be at the level of Associate Professor or higher, commensurate with experience.

Dartmouth-Hitchcock is an academic medical center located in Lebanon, New Hampshire in the Upper Connecticut River Valley on the NH and VT Border. Home to Dartmouth College, the Upper Valley is a vibrant, academic and professional community offering excellent schools, lively arts, and an unmatched quality of life in a beautiful, rural setting. Amenities associated with urban areas in Boston MA, Burlington VT, and Montreal, QC are all within a few hours drive. Dartmouth-Hitchcock has been consistently ranked by U.S. News & World Report as One of America's Best Hospitals.
