

Foreword

The present number commemorates the first 50 years of activity of the Lyman Entomological Museum.

The Museum crest on the cover of this number is new. It is a composite crest: the lower section, which includes the mailed fist and cross and the martlets, indicates the association with Macdonald College and McGill University; the upper section portrays Haploa confusa (Lyman).

All of the papers in this number have been written by workers at the Museum or by others who have used specimens from the Museum. The great predominance in papers on Orthoptera is a reflection of the current emphasis in research on this Order at the Museum.
