

EDITOR'S NOTE

ALBION is the journal of the Pacific Northwest Section of the Conference on British Studies. Published twice a year, its contents include, but are not limited to, papers read at the annual meeting of the Section.

The Pacific Northwest Section of the Conference on British Studies is an affiliate of the Pacific Coast branch of the Conference and of the parent organization. It meets simultaneously with the Pacific Northwest Renaissance Society each spring, but embraces all aspects of British studies, historical and literary.

Proposed Conference papers should be submitted in a format suitable for publication to the Managing Editor, Department of History, Western Washington State College, Bellingham, Washington 98225. Manuscripts not intended for presentation at the annual meeting should be sent to the Editor, Division of Social Sciences, Elmira College, Elmira, New York 14901. All manuscripts should conform to A Manual of Style published by the University of Chicago Press.

Subscriptions may be sent to Albion Business Manager, Department of History, University of Idaho, Moscow, Idaho 83501. Annual Subscription, Two Dollars.
