Holy Scripture

Canon, Authority, Criticism

James Barr

The men of the Bible did not themselves have a Bible to be their supreme guide and authority. Their attitudes to scripture differ greatly from those that were created once the boundaries of scripture were drawn and its contents defined. This book discusses the way in which the canon of scripture was formed and the effects that it has, as well as recent suggestions that the canon should be the guiding principle in interpretation. 'An enormously helpful book.' Church of England Newspaper £13.00 paperback £5.95

Discerning the Mystery

An Essay on the Nature of Theology

Andrew Louth

The author first examines the presuppositions of the claims of the Enlightenment, with its rejection of the ways of understanding handed down by tradition, and then shows how the traditional ways of theology, especially the Patristic use of allegory in Biblical interpretation, can be seen to retain their validity once the pretensions of the Enlightenment have been exposed. £12.50

The Origins of the Christian Mystical Tradition from Plato to Denys

Andrew Louth

'A book on spirituality which is trenchant and without any touch of sentimentality.' Henry Chadwick, Times Literary Supplement. 'It is a great merit in this book that it is ready to talk about dogma and indeed tries to unite, in the spirit of the Fathers, doctrine and spirituality.' Journal of Theological Studies £5.50 paperback

The Spiritual Nature of Man

Alister Hardy

Based on the work of the Religious Experience Research Unit in Oxford, The Spiritual Nature of Man was first published in 1979 and aroused widespread interest. 'Readers of this book will feel urged to look at their own inner life and experience... The study of inner space is surely vital to the future of mankind as the exploration of outer space.' The Daily Telegraph £6.25 paperback

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

1. Contributions and books for review should be sent to the new Editor, Professor S. R. Sutherland, King's College, Strand, London, WC2R 2LS.
2. Articles submitted to the journal should in general be between 5,000 and 10,000 words long, though articles outside these limits will be acceptable if there is some good reason for their exceptional length or brevity. Articles in two or more parts may occasionally be accepted provided each part is independently intelligible. They should normally be in English.
3. Submission of an article is taken to imply that it has not previously been published, or is not being considered for publication elsewhere.
4. Contributions should be clearly typed in double spacing, preferably on A4 paper, with a wide left-hand margin. The typescript should be prepared to accord as closely as possible with the typographical conventions of the journal.
5. Footnotes should be used sparingly: in general, to give sources of direct quotations, references to main authorities on disputable questions, and evidence relied on for a new or unusual conclusion. They should be numbered in one sequence throughout the article, and should preferably be typed in double spacing at the end of the article.
6. Contributors should keep one copy of the typescript for correcting proofs.
7. First proofs may be read and corrected by contributors provided that they can give the Editor an address through which they can be reached without delay and can guarantee to return the corrected proofs to the Editor, by airmail where necessary, within ten days of receiving them.
8. Correction should be kept to an absolute minimum. It should be confined to errors of the typist or printer unless the Editor authorises otherwise.
9. All contributors of articles receive 50 free offprints. Reviewers will receive five or more offprints of their reviews.
10. If rejected manuscripts are to be returned, stamps or international coupons should be sent to cover postage, but it would normally be simpler just to retain a copy.
11. Contributors of accepted articles will be asked to assign their copyrights, on certain conditions, to Cambridge University Press, to help protect their material, particularly in the USA.
