

MUSIC FOR LOVE'S LABOUR LOST

by
GERALD FINZI

Four songs which were composed for a broadcast version of Shakespeare's play—"Songs of Hiems and Ver" and "Songs for Moth." Originally scored for small orchestra, together with an instrumental suite, they are now published with a piano reduction. In either form they are well suited to concert performance and may be sung as a cycle, or individually. Although their medium range makes it possible for them all to be sung by one voice, the happiest effect is to be achieved by sharing them between two contrasted voices, preferably mezzo-soprano and baritone.

MOZART'S BASSOON CONCERTO

Messrs. Boosey & Hawkes wish to state that, although in their recent edition of this work the bassoon part has been revised and the cadenzas were added by Mr. Archie Camden, the edition contains matter of which he did not approve. This is due to a regrettable error which led to the edition being printed before Mr. Archie Camden could revise the proofs.
