

NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

LESLIE ELLIOTT ARMIJO, Assistant Professor of Political Science at Northeastern University, has published on privatization, capital flows, and the interaction between democratization and economic reform. Her forthcoming book is entitled Roller Coaster or Elephant? Politics and Finance in Brazil and India.

ELIZABETH LEEDS is Executive Director of the Center for International Studies at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. She has long-standing research interests in Brazil and Portugal, having published on labor export from Southern Europe and on housing, urbanization, and social movements in Brazil. Her current research project focuses on constraints on democratization in nominally democratic societies.

JEFFREY W. RUBIN teaches political science at Amherst College.

JAMES W. MCGUIRE is Associate Professor of Government at Wesleyan University. He has written on trade unions and political parties in Argentina, transitions to democracy in Latin America, and economic development in East Asia and Latin America. Stanford University Press will publish his book, Peronism without Perón: Unions, Parties, and Democracy in Argentina.

VICTOR BULMER-THOMAS is Director of the Institute of Latin American Studies and Professor of Economics at Queen Mary and Westfield College, both at the University of London. He recently edited The New Economic Model in Latin America and Its Impact on Income Distribution and Poverty. He has been an editor of the Journal of Latin American Studies since 1985.

PABLO RODAS-MARTINI is an economist at the Banco de Guatemala and at ASIES (Asociación de Investigaciones Económicas y Sociales) in Guatemala. He completed his master's and doctoral degrees at the University of London.

RICARDO GRINSPUN is Associate Professor of Economics and Director of the Centre for Research on Latin America and the Caribbean (CERLAC) at York University in Toronto. He has published widely on the political economy of North American integration and is currently investigating regionalism and hemispheric integration in the Americas.

MAXWELL A. CAMERON serves as Associate Professor at the Norman Paterson School of International Affairs at Carleton University, Ottawa. He has written Democracy and Authoritarianism in Peru as well as articles on the Mexican and Peruvian political economies. Currently, he is completing a coauthored book on the trilateral negotiations that led to NAFTA.

KURT WEYLAND is Assistant Professor of Political Science at Vanderbilt University. He published Democracy without Equity: Failures of Reform in Brazil (1996) and several articles on public-policy making in Brazil and democratization, market-oriented reform, and neopopulism in Latin America.

PAUL B. DIXON teaches Latin American literature at Purdue University. The author of Reversible Readings: Ambiguity in Four Modern Latin American Novels and two books on Machado de Assis, he has also published numerous journal articles on Luso-Brazilian and Spanish American literature.

MANUEL PASTOR, JR., is Professor of Latin American and Latino Studies at the University of California, Santa Cruz. He has published widely on the political economy of reform in Latin America and is currently conducting research on market liberalization and macroeconomic stabilization in Argentina and Mexico.

K. LYNN STONER is an associate professor of history and the Director of the Center for Latin American Studies at Arizona State University. Her research concentrates on Cuban women's history during the early republican period (1898–1958). She wrote From the House to the Streets: The Cuban Woman's Movement for Legal Reform, 1898–1940.

JORGE DUANY is Associate Professor of Anthropology and Director of the Revista de Ciencias Sociales at the University of Puerto Rico in Río Piedras. His main research interests are Caribbean migration, ethnic identity, and popular culture. His most recent publications are El Barrio Gandul: Economía subterránea y migración indocumentada en Puerto Rico (coauthored with Luisa Hernández Angueira and César A. Rey) and Los cubanos en Puerto Rico: Economía étnica e identidad cultural (coauthored with José A. Cobas), both published in 1995.