Prophecy and Myth in Mexican History

D. A. BRADING

The three main essays deal with conquest, insurgency and revolution through an analysis of the ideology of Las Casas and Mendieta, Bolívar and Morelos, Molina Enriquez and Vasconcelos. Minor sections deal with the Churrigueresque and Los bandidos del rio frio. 96 pp. 0 904927 44 0 Paperback £4.95

Bandits and Politics in Peru: Landlord and Peasant Violence in Hualgayoc 1900–30

LEWIS TAYLOR

An analysis of the political and socio-economic relations among landlords, peasants and bandits in the northern highlands of Peru. Local factional rivalries meshed with national politics and culminated in Eleodoro Benel's rebellion against the Leguía dictatorship. 140 pp. 0 904927 29 6 Paperback £5.95

Generals and Diplomats: Great Britain and Peru 1820–40

CELIA WU

These essays centre on the Peru-Bolivian Confederation and deal with the origin and formation of Peruvian generals, a British naval blockade of Callao, the support given by Belford Hinton Wilson, British consul general, to President Andrés de Santa Cruz, and the role of Manuel Ferreyros, Peruvian journalist and foreign minister. 125 pp. 0 904927 30 7 Paperback £4.95

The Origins of Mexican Nationalism

D. A. BRADING

The first English edition of this much cited work which traces the transformation of Creole patriotism into insurgent nationalism effected by Servando de Mier and Bustamante and its subsequent eclipse after independence owing to the rise of Mexican liberalism. 119 pp. 0 904927 47 0 Paperback £4.95

This stirring narrative is the most thorough account yet available of a revolution that saw the first true agrarian reform in Central America. It is also a penetrating analysis of the tragic destruction of that revolution. In no other Central American country was U.S. intervention so decisive and so ruinous, charges Piero Gleijeses. Yet he shows that the intervention can be blamed on no single "convenient villain," but rather on a complex interplay of imperial hubris, security concerns, and economic considerations.

"With a sure command of fresh materials that give him insight into the Guatemalan side as well as into U.S. foreign policy, Piero Gleijeses has written an indispensable analysis of this once-promising and now tragic—and most instructive—event in U.S.–Latin American relations."

Between Silver and Guano

Commercial Policy and the State in Postindependence Peru

Paul Gootenberg

This study of Peru's transformation from a tottering colonial economy based on extraction of precious bullion to a massive exporter of bulk goods like guano shows how a struggle between protectionists and free traders shaped the state.

"This is an elegant and sophisticated book that can be read on many levels, written by an author who never takes the facile road. [Its] significance is great—not just for Peruvian history but for theoretical questions relating to dependency and economic history in nineteenth-century Latin America. . . ."

THE WELSH IN PATAGONIA

THE STATE AND THE ETHNIC COMMUNITY
GLYN WILLIAMS

The focus of this book is a sociological analysis of the Welsh community in the Lower Chubut Valley of Patagonia from its establishment in the 1860s until 1975. What starts as an episode in Welsh history ends as a study of a section of Argentine society.

This book offers not only an analysis of the social structure and patterns of the community but also the community's relationship to the external. The author argues that the nature of the ethnic community derives from its relationship to the state and its power rather than from cultural forms associated with the homeland.

A DECADE OF TERROR

El Salvador Since the Assassination of Archbishop Romero
AMERICAS WATCH

This book — the second in a series to be published jointly by Yale University Press and Human Rights Watch — documents a decade of enmity and fierce civil war that has raged in El Salvador since the murder of outspoken advocate for peace and social justice, Archbishop Arnulfo Romero, in 1980. Challenging the failure of El Salvador's military and American-backed government to implement political, judicial and economic reforms, the authors show how human rights have deteriorated to their worst levels since the early 1980s, and call for the United States to re-evaluate its policy in the region. 192pp. £14.00

SUGARBALL

The American Game, the Dominican Dream

ALAN M. KLEIN

In the Dominican republic, baseball is not only a game — it's a national obsession. Exported from and controlled by the United States, it is also a crucial arena of intercultural relations. In this fascinating book Alan Klein evokes the wild enthusiasm that Dominicans have for the game and shows how it mirrors the conflict they feel between allowing the resisting American hegemony in their country. 224pp. Illus. £11.95

Feeding the Crisis

U.S. Food Aid and Farm Policy in Central America

Rachel Garst and Tom Barry

Since 1980 the United States has increased tenfold its shipments of food to Central America. Supposedly, this humanitarian aid has alleviated social turmoil and economic underdevelopment in Central America. But has it really been in the best interests of the people it was intended to assist? After nearly two years of research that took them to Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, and Costa Rica, Rachel Garst and Tom Barry have concluded that U. S. food shipments and assistance in agricultural development are, in fact, hurting rather than helping.

The Heritage of the Conquistadors

Ruling Classes in Central America from Conquest to the Sandinistas

Samuel Z. Stone

"Trenchant observations on why domestic policies have succeeded or failed in each country are coupled with explanations of their foreign policies. Stone's views on North American and European responses to Central American conflicts are interesting reading and will challenge fundamental assumptions held by many observers of the scene." - Richard E. Greenleaf, Director of Latin American Studies, Tulane University

Review of International Studies

Edited by Richard Little, Department of Politics and International Relations, Lancaster University

Published for the British International Studies Association by Cambridge University Press

Set up in 1974 as the flagship journal of British International Studies Association, Review of International Studies serves the needs of scholars in politics, law, history and all other areas of social science in the international arena.

Review of International Studies is a journal which no library on international relations can be without. It covers all topics ranging from international organization and intercultural communication to political economy and war cultures. For example recent issues have covered European foreign policy, human rights and the arms industry, with a discussion on Clausewitz. There have been reviews of recent literature on the legality of nuclear weapons as well as on the UN; discussion of Cold War and Reganism; the theory of systems and states; and an analysis of the first UN resolution on treatment of Indians in South Africa. Review of International Studies takes a strong interdisciplinary perspective and its excellent reputation attracts writing from academics worldwide. It brings together work from well-known scholars and from those starting out, ensuring a dynamic exchange of new views and ideas.

International Affairs

Published for the Royal Institute of International Affairs by Cambridge University Press

International Affairs, founded in 1922, is the quarterly journal of the Royal Institute of International Affairs and Britain's leading policy journal of contemporary world affairs. It combines broad-based coverage of global policy questions with up-to-date and penetrating analysis of the key processes shaping world developments. Articles by practising policy-makers and academic specialists keep both general and specialist readers in touch with the leading edge of European debates, as well as with thinking elsewhere on current international issues. International Affairs brings the issues of today to the fore in a way that is readable and stimulating. The journal also carries an unrivalled book review section, reviewing more than 100 new books on world affairs in every issue, thus providing an up-to-date survey of new work.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

The Journal of Latin American Studies is published three times a year, in February, May and October. Its editorial offices are located in the Institute of Latin American Studies, University of London. The editorial board includes representatives of the Centres or Institutes of Latin American Studies in the Universities of Cambridge, Essex, Glasgow, Liverpool, London and Oxford.

The scope of the Journal is the study of Latin America from the standpoint of the social sciences (including history and international relations). Articles on literature and the arts are not normally included, but the editors are pleased to consider contributions in the field of intellectual and cultural history. Articles with an inter-disciplinary approach are particularly welcome.

Contributions are invited from all parts of the world. Articles should generally not be more than 8000 words long. Two copies typed with double spacing should be submitted. A style sheet is available from the editors. The Journal is published in English, but articles may also be submitted in Spanish or Portuguese; if the article is accepted, translation into English will be the responsibility of the author. Tables, diagrams and maps may be included by arrangement with the editors. The Journal only publishes original contributions; translations of articles already published will not be accepted. Each contributor will receive, free of charge, 25 offprints of the article and a copy of the issue of the Journal in which it appears.

The Journal publishes book reviews in each issue. Not all books received can be reviewed and editorial policy gives preference to substantial reviews of books regarded as of major importance for the disciplines covered by the Journal.

All contributions and editorial correspondence should be addressed to Journal of Latin American Studies, Institute of Latin American Studies, 31 Tavistock Square, London, WC1H 9HA.
