SECOND INTERNATIONAL SYMPOSIUM ON COCHLEAR IMPLANTS

PARIS, 22–24 SEPTEMBER 1983

THE Second International Symposium on Cochlear Implants will be held in Paris on 22–24 September 1983.

Five years after the First International Symposium, the aim of this one is to discuss the various techniques used in different centres and to assess the progress made by the different teams working on this method of rehabilitation in patients with total deafness.

In order to compare the advantages and disadvantages of the different techniques and to compare the long-term clinical results, the Symposium will be composed of four workshops, devoted to:

- Correlation between input and output signals.
- Implanted material tolerance.
- Clinical results
- Present and future patient selection.

Each workshop will have a brief introductory lecture from each of the different teams, followed by a Round Table organized in such a way that the participants will have the opportunity to ask any questions they wish.

There will also be a Session reserved for free papers.

Participants will include speakers from Australia, Austria, England, France, Germany and the U.S.A.

Summaries of free papers, registration fees, and hotel reservations and payments must be sent before 1 April 1983. Hotels closest to the venue of the Symposium will be reserved for those who register earliest.
