Cambridge Opera Journal

Cambridge Opera Journal has an established reputation for publishing the best opera scholarship. Carefully researched and often illustrated with music example, articles range widely across the whole opera repertoire and a wide variety of disciplines from musicology to literature, theatre and history, avoiding narrowly musicological or philological modes of enquiry. As well as major articles, each issue generally includes a review article on a recent publication or publication of importance in the field.

Recent articles include: 'An infinity of factions': Opera in eighteenth century Britain and the undoing of society; On Ruslan and Russianness: Reading a staging/Staging a reading; Technology of the archaic; wish images and phantasmogoria in Wagner; The twilight of the true gods; Cristoforo Colombo, I Medici and the construction of Italian History.

Kent Cartwright proposes that humanist drama of the sixteenth century is theatrically exciting - rather than literary, elitist and dull as it has often been seen - and socially significant, taking as examples the plays of Marlowe, Heywood, Lyly and Greene, as well as many by lesser-known dramatists.
