"THE BAGNIOS OF ALGIERS" AND "THE GREAT SULTANA"

Two Plays of Captivity

Miguel de Cervantes

Edited and translated by Barbara Fuchs and Aaron J. Ilika

The first English translation of two captivity plays by Cervantes, set in Algiers and Constantinople. Featuring a lively cast of corsairs, captives, and renegades, they offer important insights into early modern Spain's conception of the world of Islam.

THEATRICAL NATION

Jews and Other Outlandish Englishmen in Georgian Britain

Michael Ragussis

Focusing on such popular figures as the stage Jew, Scot, and Irishman, Michael Ragussis reveals the crucial role the theater played in developing, maintaining, and questioning the ethnic stereotypes through which the identity of the English nation was defined.

2010 | 288 pages | 10 illus. | Cloth | $55.00

RIVAL QUEENS

Actresses, Performance, and the Eighteenth-Century British Theater

Felicity Nussbaum

Historians of British theater have often noted that the eighteenth century was an age not of the author but of the actor. In Rival Queens, Felicity Nussbaum argues that the period might more accurately be seen as the age of women in the theater, and more particularly as the age of the actress.

2010 | 376 pages | 29 illus. | Cloth | $55.00

NEW IN PAPERBACK SPEAKING OF THE MOOR

From "Alcazar" to "Othello"

Emily C. Bartels

"Bartels is one of the first, and certainly one of the most influential, literary critics to emphasize the crucial point that before the onset of the Atlantic slave trade, Africa's place in early modern English conceptualizations was open ended. She shows with great clarity that narratives of Africa were diverse and unpredictable."—Mary Floyd-Wilson, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

MODERN Drama

Modern Drama was founded in 1958 and is the most prominent journal in English to focus on dramatic literature.

The terms “modern” and “drama” are the subject of continuing and fruitful debate, but the journal has been distinguished by the excellence of its close readings of both canonical and lesser-known dramatic texts from a range of methodological perspectives. Modern Drama features refereed articles written from a variety of geo-political points of view which enhance our understanding, both formal and historical, of the dramatic literature of the past two centuries.

Modern Drama is now available ONLINE!

Coming soon to Modern Drama

“The Listening Room: Voice and Performance” (52.4 Winter 2009)

In this special issue, Tara McAllister-Viel discusses voice-training exercises developed with her students as a way of mediating between cultures, rather than simply “applying” western techniques in her article Voicing Culture: Training Korean Actors’ Voices through the Namdaemun Market Projects. The article features videos of Korean students learning in a classroom setting — a unique visual supplement available on Modern Drama Online!

“Gossip” (53.3 Fall 2010)

In fall 2010, Modern Drama’s special issue on “Gossip” will highlight the interplay of gossip with modern drama, theatre, performance, and performativity. Contributors will examine such phenomena as back-stage drama, celebrity scandals, and plays whose plots hinge on the spread of rumours. Each essay will be guided by the related questions: What is gossip’s special role in constructions of modernity, and why are modern arenas for performance such uniquely fertile sites for gossip’s dissemination? In the process, the special issue will demonstrate how a meditation on gossip can help us to re-conceive the contours of modern drama and to situate it alongside such related forms as film and new media.

NEW THEATRE QUARTERLY

New Theatre Quarterly provides a vital international forum where theatrical scholarship and practice can meet and where prevailing dramatic assumptions can be subjected to vigorous critical questioning. It shows that theatre history has a contemporary relevance, that theatre studies need a methodology and that theatre criticism needs a language. The journal publishes news, analysis and debate within the field of theatre studies.

THE AMERICAN SOCIETY FOR THEATRE RESEARCH

The American Society for Theatre Research (ASTR) is a U.S.-based professional organization that fosters scholarship on worldwide theatre and performance, both historical and contemporary. ASTR was founded in 1956 to encourage theatre scholarship in the United States and to provide a link to similar research-oriented organizations, such as the International Federation for Theatre Research/La Fédération Internationale pour la Recherche Théâtrale (IFTR/FIRT). ASTR was incorporated under the laws of the state of New Jersey as a nonprofit corporation in 1967, and is the only theatre organization in the United States formally affiliated with both the American Council of Learned Societies and with the IFTR/FIRT. The ASTR Annual Meeting occurs in the fall of each year.

Theatre Survey, the official journal of ASTR, is published biannually in May and November, and is one of the benefits of membership in the Society. ASTR annual dues for North Americans are $115.00 for individual members, $40.00 for retired members, $35.00 for students. Foreign members pay an additional $7.50 in each of the above categories. Inquiries about ASTR, including membership, should be directed to:

American Society for Theatre Research

The logo for the American Society for Theatre Research (ASTR) features the acronym "ASTR" in large, bold, gold-colored letters with a distressed, hand-painted texture. The letters are stacked vertically, with "A" at the top, "S" in the middle, and "T" and "R" at the bottom. The "R" has a long, sweeping tail that extends to the right.
