

Human Rights in Crisis

The International System for Protecting Rights During States of Emergency

JOAN M. FITZPATRICK

In Human Rights in Crisis, Joan M. Fitzpatrick offers the first systematic and comprehensive effort to examine the multifaceted system for monitoring human rights abuses during states of emergency. Unlike previous studies, this book does not focus on substantive norms governing crises, but rather on how those norms might best be implemented. 352 pages, £42.50 hb

The Failure of the Criminal Procedure Revolution

CRAIG M. BRADLEY

The Failure of the Criminal Procedure Revolution is a groundbreaking effort to advocate systematic and essential reform in America's court system. Bradley proposes that the United States should, in keeping with the international trend, regulate police procedures through a comprehensive and nationally applicable code. He examines why the present system is a failure and how other countries have developed their criminal procedure law. 290 pages, £31.95 hb

Employment and Human Rights

The International Dimension

RICHARD LEWIS SIEGEL

In Employment and Human Rights, Richard Siegel traces the development of the right to employment as well as regional and global efforts to achieve full employment. He examines a wealth of material from English radical pamphlets of the seventeenth century to recent debates at international forums. Intellectual history is placed in the broadest possible contexts of economic, political, and social developments. Siegel also examines global and regional efforts in the present century intended to further the implementation of the right to employment and presents a realistic picture of the internal processes and competitive efforts of such organizations as the UN, the ILO, the organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, the World Bank, and the IMF. 272 pages, £32.95 hb

Corporations, Crime and Accountability

BRENT FISSE

and JOHN BRAITHWAITE

This book explains why accountability for corporate crime is rarely imposed under the present law, and proposes solutions which would help to extend responsibility to a wide range of actors. The authors develop an Accountability Model under which the courts and corporations work together to achieve accountability across a broad front.

Judicial Reform and Land Reform in the Roman Republic

A New Edition, with Translation and Commentary, of the Laws from Urbino

ANDREW LINTOTT

A complete re-edition of the texts of two Roman laws from the second century BC which have survived from antiquity on 12 fragments of bronze. The laws are of considerable interest to historians since they provide important evidence for the understanding of the revolutionary period which led to the overthrow of the Roman Republic.

Grotius Publications

Cambridge University Press is delighted to announce the acquisition of Grotius Publications Limited, a leading publisher in the field of international law. Grotius has been based in Cambridge since 1978 and has worked closely with the University's Research Centre for International Law. We are especially pleased to announce the arrival of Yoram Dinstein's highly regarded new edition:

War, Aggression and Self-Defence

Second Edition

YORAM DINSTEIN

'... [a] distinguished volume of admirable quality and incisiveness ... In sum, Dinstein has provided a splendid tour d'horizon of the salient issues in this significant area of the law.

American Journal of International Law

'Professor Dinstein's book is a significant publication. It is a wide-ranging study in three parts, covering respectively the legal nature of war, the illegality of war and exceptions to the prohibition of the use of force ... This is, then, an excellent book on a highly controversial topic ...'

British Yearbook of International Law
