

ROME AND THE INVENTION OF THE PAPACY

The Liber Pontificalis

Rosamond McKitterick,
University of Cambridge

“A key narrative on the authority of papal Rome, the Liber pontificalis still carries so much weight that many historians take it for granted. This is no longer possible with Rosamond McKitterick’s book at hand. It is an absorbing enquiry into the creation and dissemination of a powerful text.”

World Christianity at Candler

The new World Christianity program at Emory University's Candler School of Theology prepares leaders for ministry in culturally and internationally diverse Christian communities and scholars for research in the emerging field of world Christianity.

- + Study with leading scholars in the field and draw on the rich resources of Emory in either a master's program at Candler or a PhD program in the Laney Graduate School.
- + Consider the diverse pasts and future possibilities of world Christianity through interdisciplinary study of Christian communities, cultures, practices, and beliefs.
- + Live and practice ministry in the vibrant, globally connected city of Atlanta.
- + Immerse yourself in global religious and cultural landscapes through academic exchanges, travel seminars, and internships in places such as Brazil, Germany, Kenya, South Africa, Singapore and more.

Front cover: Angela Levy’s Rose of the Carrier (ca. 1990). This image depicts Rose Prince, a Dakelh woman, in front of the Lejac Indian Residential School holding both a prayer book and a talking stick. The painting was gifted to St. Andrew’s Parish of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Prince George in Fraser Lake, British Columbia, Canada and is now stored at the Lejac Pilgrimage site for use during the annual pilgrimage event honoring Rose Prince. <https://www.pgdiocese.bc.ca/lejac/>.
