SOCIAL SECURITY AND FAMILY LAW

(United Kingdom Comparative Law Series—
Volume 4)

Edited by
Alec Samuels

The problems of the single parent—especially the single mother—are fundamentally the same throughout the world. This book examines and compares the means adopted in different jurisdictions in dealing with those problems. Contributors come from Australia and the USA, as well as from France, Germany, Ireland, Sweden, the UK and the European Communities. In considering the provisions of family law and social security law in relation to single parents, the book deals with many practical issues and the basic attitudes of law and society to marriage and the family. It also considers harmonisation and other forms of international action.

OBJECTS AND MEMBERSHIP

The British Institute of International and Comparative Law was founded in 1958 in order to bring together and expand the work of the Society of Comparative Legislation and International Law (founded in 1894) and the Grotius Society (founded in 1915). The Institute provides a centre for research, discussion and publications on the practical application to contemporary affairs of public and private international law and comparative law. Its membership is drawn from the judiciary, academic and practising lawyers, as well as lawyers engaged in government, commerce and industry in this country and abroad. It occupies modern central premises in Russell Square, London WC1, where it has access to a fine set of conference rooms, together with its own specialised library.

The Institute has a Council of Management of which the Chairman is the Rt Hon Lord Denning and an Advisory Board which is divided into three sections, Public International Law (Chairman, Sir Ian Sinclair), Private International Law (Chairman, Professor R.H. Graveson), and Comparative Law (Chairman, the Rt Hon Sir Robert Megarry). The Institute publishes The International and Comparative Law Quarterly, the fortnightly Bulletin of Legal Developments and other books in each of the fields of the Institute's interests. The I.C.L.Q., published four times each year, is a journal with unique coverage of public and private international law, and comparative law, with particular emphasis on European Community and Commonwealth law. The fortnightly B.L.D. provides an up-to-the-minute information service on developments in law all over the world, including legislation, case law, law reform proposals and international agreements; each issue contains about 90 items of news which are digested under European, Commonwealth and common law countries, international organisations and international developments.

Membership is worldwide and open to individuals, firms and corporations without restriction on nationality. It entitles the member to participate in the activities of the Institute and to receive the I.C.L.Q. and a periodic newsletter of its activities.

Full membership is open to individuals entitling them to attend all meetings and lectures of the Institute and to one copy of the I.C.L.Q. Student membership is open to any person studying law in the United Kingdom or overseas full-time at a university or other law school or for call to the Bar or for admission as a solicitor, at half the full membership fee. The half rate is available for up to three years after call or admission but not for more than three years in all. The student should provide particulars of attendance at a full-time course at a law school or of comparable full-time student status with a supporting signature of the Dean or other officer of the law school, or of his principal or master.

Corporate membership is available for institutions, firms and corporations, and entitles corporate members to full information about the activities of the Institute, one copy of the I.C.L.Q. and the fortnightly B.L.D., reduced fees for one participant at the conferences of the Institute and up to three additional copies of the I.C.L.Q. if required, free of charge. The Institute's other publications may be obtained at a 25 per cent. discount.

TRUSTS AND TRUST-LIKE DEVICES

(United Kingdom Comparative Law Series—
Volume 5)

Edited by
Professor W.A. Wilson

This work is based on revised papers and contributions originally submitted to a colloquium held by the UK National Committee for Comparative Law. It contains ten contributions from various jurisdictions, including Denmark, France, Germany, the Netherlands, Scotland, South Africa, the UK and the USA. Contributors are A.J. Hawkins, Professor L.A. Sheridan, Professor William F. Fratcher, Professor Eugen Dietrich Graue, C.Ae. Uniken Venema, Professor Torben Svenne Schmidt, D.B. Walters, the late Professor B. Beinart and Professor W.A. Wilson.

The essays examine the nature of the trust and provide a fascinating insight into the means by which laws other than the common law provide the protection for beneficial ownership which is secured in English law by the trust.

DIPLOMATIC LAW

By

Eileen Denza

This important work gives a clear and concise, article-by-article commentary on the 1961 Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations, which is now very widely in force in the international community. The author, Eileen Denza, who is a Legal Counsellor at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, London, has had considerable personal experience of both the establishment and the subsequent interpretation of the Convention. The commentaries incorporate extensive references to contemporary State practice on diplomatic rights, privileges and immunities.

THE HAMBURG RULES ON THE CARRIAGE OF GOODS BY SEA

Collected Papers and Documents

Edited by Dr Samir Mankabady

The Hamburg Rules were adopted at a Conference held in Hamburg in the spring of 1978. The new Convention will eventually replace the Hague Rules on Bills of Lading.

This work contains an account of the origins and drafting of the Convention, together with a series of critical essays on various aspects of its provisions and the text of the Convention.

The retail price is £20, but members of the Institute and subscribers to the International and Comparative Law Quarterly may purchase copies of the book directly from the Institute at the special concessionary price of £16 (exclusive of postage and packing).
