Founding Corporate Power in Early National Philadelphia

Andrew M. Schocket

"Deeply researched and imaginatively argued ... Schocket asks fundamental questions about how and by whom power is wielded and about why certain choices were taken."—Daniel K. Richter, University of Pennsylvania

- Between 1780 and 1830, corporations sprang up to provide water, transportation, and financial institutions for the citizens of Philadelphia. An elite group of entrepreneurs controlled these corporations, but they generated widespread prosperity by offering services that allowed middle-class businessmen to flourish. This mixed legacy, Schocket argues, resulted in the public's ambivalence toward U.S. corporations to this day.

GUIDELINES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

GENERAL INFORMATION

Manuscripts are considered for publication on the understanding that they are not concurrently under consideration elsewhere and that the material—in substance as well as form—has not been previously published.

Three copies of the manuscript should be submitted.

Authors should identify themselves only on a separate title page that provides name, mailing address, and telephone number. Authors must also remember not to identify themselves in the body of the manuscript; specifically, references to their own work in the text should be in the third person, and citations should be written without possessive pronouns—not “See my ....”

Potential contributors should initially submit hard copy, not diskettes, but it will save considerable work for all parties in the event of acceptance if authors follow a few rules from the beginning:

- In general, use as few formatting commands as possible.
- Left justify text.
- Do not hyphenate words at the end of lines.
- ALL material—including extracted quotations and notes—must be double spaced.
- Notes should be numbered consecutively and citations should be placed as footnotes or endnotes formatted as indicated by The Chicago Manual of Style (2003).
- Each table and figure must be accompanied by a complete source.

Each article should be accompanied by an abstract of 75 to 100 words outlining the main point(s) of the paper and placing the article in context. Subheads should be used to divide the manuscript into three or four sections (or more, depending on length). The manuscript length, including footnotes, should not exceed 10,000 words.

We are always eager to publish illustrations, but authors should not include originals of illustrative materials at the time of submission; photocopies of such material may be included. Authors are responsible for obtaining all illustrative materials and permissions for reproduction, and for writing captions.

Authors of accepted manuscripts will receive two copies of the issue in which the article appears and twenty-five offprints.

MANUSCRIPT PREPARATION

We use the 15th edition of The Chicago Manual of Style (2003) and spell and hyphenate words according to the 11th edition of Merriam-Webster's Collegiate Dictionary.

The journal encourages authors to use gender-neutral prose in all cases where it is not anachronistic to do so; male nouns and pronouns should not be used to refer to people of both sexes. We use the day-month-year form for dates, as in 11 Feb. 1998, in the notes, but in the text, dates are written month-day-year, as in February 11, 1998. Double quotation marks should be used for direct quotation; single quotation marks are used for quoted material inside quotations.
