
EDITORIAL NOTE

There have been some recent changes in the journal. Peter Vallentyne (University of Missouri, Columbia) came in as a new editor in 2003 to take over from Marc Fleurbaey who stepped down in 2004. We added Bertil Tungodden (Norwegian School of Economics and Business Administration, Bergen) as a fourth editor in January 2005. In addition, Giacomo Bonanno (University of California, Davis) will take over from Geoffrey Brennan in October 2005. In 2006, we will start publishing three rather than two volumes per year. The managing editor Christoph Schmidt-Petri has moved from the University of Konstanz (Germany) to the University of Witten/Herdecke (Germany), which implies a move for the editorial office. I myself have moved from the University of Colorado, Boulder, to the London School of Economics.

With about 160 submissions in the last eighteen months, Economics and Philosophy has had an acceptance rate of about 8%. Our current turnaround time is about four months on average, and we undertake efforts to improve this. Our aim is to have papers refereed within three to four months from submission.

The editors would also like to express their thanks to all those who have refereed for the journal. Much of the refereeing is done by the editorial board, but for some papers we rely on outside expertise. From October 2003 till April 2005, the following people have agreed to referee for the journal:
