

NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

JOHN SHEAHAN is Professor of Economics, Emeritus, Williams College. He is the author of Patterns of Development in Latin America: Poverty, Regression, and Economic Strategy.

SHAWN C. SMALLMAN is Assistant Professor in the International Studies Department at Portland State University.

LOUIS A. WOODS is Professor of Geography and Economics in the Department of Economics and Geography at the University of North Florida. His current research interests include developmental issues in Belize and Guyana. The coauthor of Strategic Behavior and the U.S. Unfair Trade Statutes (1995), he is currently conducting research on NAFTA and trade blocs of the Western Hemisphere.

JOSEPH M. PERRY is Professor of Economics and Chair of the Department of Economics and Geography at the University of Florida. His research emphasizes Cuba and its role in economic development in the Caribbean region.

JEFFREY W. STEAGALL, Associate Professor of Economics in the Department of Economics and Geography at the University of North Florida, is the coauthor of Strategic Behavior and the U.S. Unfair Trade Statutes (1995). He is currently conducting research on NAFTA and trade blocs of the Western Hemisphere.

TANYA KOROVKIN is Associate Professor in the Department of Political Science at the University of Waterloo in Canada. She has written articles on the effects of neoliberal economic policies on Chilean peasants and published The Politics of Agricultural Cooperativism: Peru, 1969–1983.

JULIO CESAR PINO is Assistant Professor of History at Kent State University. His field of concentration is household life among the urban poor in Brazil, as reflected in his forthcoming book, Family and Favela: The Reproduction of Poverty in Rio de Janeiro.

CAREN ADDIS, Assistant Professor of Political Science at Rutgers University at Camden, has published a number of articles on various aspects of Brazilian industrialization.

RAUL GARCIA HERAS is Assistant Professor of Economic History at the Universidad de Buenos Aires and a research fellow at CONICET. He wrote Transportes, negocios y política: La Compañía Anglo Argentina de Tranvías, 1876–1981. He is currently researching the role of the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund, and U.S. and European private banks in economic policy making in Argentina between 1955 and 1966.

JUDY BIEBER is Assistant Professor of History at the University of New Mexico. Her research interests include the social and political history of Imperial Brazil, slavery and the African diaspora, and the Brazilian sertão. She is currently researching nineteenth-century indigenous policy that impacted the Doce and Mucuri river basins.

JUDITH FRANCIS ZEITLIN is Assistant Professor of Anthropology at the University of Massachusetts–Boston. She conducts archaeological and ethnohistorical research on Zapotec society in the Tehuantepec region of Mexico during the contact and colonial periods.

Currently teaching history at the University of Alabama at Birmingham, PAMELA MURRAY has conducted research in both Colombia and Mexico. She has written various articles and just published Dreams of Development: Colombia's National School of Mines and Its Engineers, 1887–1970.

FELIX V. MATOS RODRIGUEZ is an assistant professor of history at Northeastern University. He is currently revising for publication his doctoral dissertation, "Mujeres de la capital: Women and Urban Life in Nineteenth-Century San Juan, Puerto Rico, 1820–1868."

Associate Professor of Political Science at the State University of New York at Buffalo, GARY HOSKIN was a visiting professor at the Universidad de los Andes in Santa Fe de Bogotá in 1996–1997. His research interests focus on democratization, political parties and elections, and legislative behavior. He has published numerous articles, essays, and edited works on these themes, most of them relating to Colombian politics.

Former Profesor Investigador at the Centro de Investigación y Docencia Económica in Mexico City, MAURICIO TENORIO TRILLO is currently Assistant Professor in the Department of History at the University of Texas at Austin. He recently published Mexico at the World's Fairs: Crafting a Modern Nation.

HOLLY BARNET-SANCHEZ is an assistant professor of modern Latin American and Chicano art history in the Department of Art and Art History at the University of New Mexico. She served as project co-coordinator and member of the national selection committee for the major exhibition Chicano Art: Resistance and Affirmation, which interpreted the Chicano art movement and its relationship to the Chicano civil rights movement from 1965 to 1985. A former curator at the Mexico Museum in San Francisco, Barnett-Sánchez has written on Chicano art and pre-Columbian art history.

ILENE S. GOLDMAN serves as an adjunct faculty member in the Department of Film and Video at Columbia University. She is preparing a study of the representation of Jews as marginalized religious subjects in Latin American cinema.