NEW IN AMERICAN POLITICAL THOUGHT & HISTORY

Loyola Topics in Political Philosophy
THOMAS JEFFERSON AND THE POLITICS OF NATURE

Edited by Thomas S. Engeman

"Thomas Engeman has assembled a model symposium that amounts to a comprehensive treatment of Jefferson as a thinker and writer, in a lively exchange between ranking scholars that is both learned and readable. It will be invaluable for students of American political thought and history."

—Wilson Carey McWilliams,
Professor of Political Science, Rutgers

American Political Tradition*

Michael P. Zuckert

"Zuckert's book is a powerful exposition of the most central political principles of [the American] founding. Its elegant articulation of its own thesis, together with its insightful analysis and critique of a wide variety of alternative views, makes it an extremely important contribution to debates on our national origins, which all serious students of the founding and of liberalism will have to confront."—First Things

A NEW BIRTH IN NOVEMBER. . . .

Claremont Review OF BOOKS

The Claremont Review of Books is a new quarterly journal published by the Claremont Institute. The CRB was the flagship publication of the Institute during its early years. It published interviews and essays on politics and public figures and examined the most important books of the day. Now the CRB returns with a new look, but with the same commitment to incisive commentary that distinguished its predecessor.

The Review will be edited by Charles Kesler, Senior Fellow of the Claremont Institute and Professor of Government at Claremont McKenna College.

In the inaugural issue of November 19, Dr. Kesler will review Harry Jaffa's A New Birth of Freedom, and Ken Masugi will examine the new Tocqueville translation by Harvey Mansfield and Delba Winthrop. In forthcoming issues: Mark Blitz on Heidegger, James Nichols on Kojeve, and Michael Uhlmann on the Supreme Court.

A one year subscription to the CRB costs $19.95; A two year subscription is $37.95; and a three year subscription is $54.95. Contributors of $500 or more to The Claremont Institute receive a complimentary one year subscription.

ON HISTORY AND OTHER ESSAYS

By Michael Oakeshott

Foreword by Timothy Fuller

In five essays, including three on historiography, one of the greatest minds in English political thought in the twentieth century explores themes central to the human experience: the nature of history, the rule of law, and the quest for power that is intrinsic to the human condition. Michael Oakeshott believed, as Timothy Fuller observes, that “the historian’s effort to understand the past without ulterior motive [is the] effort which distinguishes the historian as historian from all who examine the past for the guidance they expect it to provide about practical concerns.” The essays on history are “Present, Future, and Past,” “Historical Events: The fortuitous, the causal, the similar, the correlative, the analogous, and the contingent,” and “Historical Change: Identity and continuity.” In “The Rule of Law,” Oakeshott takes the expression to mean a particular kind of ideal human relationship. In “The Tower of Babel”—in one of two essays he wrote by the same title and on the same subject—Oakeshott discusses the various versions in which the Bible story has been told and the different circumstances which it has been used to illuminate. On History was originally published in 1983.
